[Determination of antineoplastic drugs in tea and tea products by high performance liquid chromatography]. A new method has been developed for the determination of chlorambucil, carmustine, cyclophosphamide, methotrexate, and 6-mercaptopurine in green tea and tea products by high performance liquid chromatography. The proposed method is suitable for simultaneous determination of all 5 antineoplastic drugs at the ng/g level. The compounds are separated on a reversed-phase column using an isocratic mobile phase of n-hexane-isopropanol-water-triethylamine (32: 2: 2: 2, v/v/v/v). The retention times for chlorambucil, carmustine, cyclophosphamide, methotrexate, and 6-mercaptopurine are 7.9, 16.0, 12.0, 30.4 and 24.1 min, respectively. The recoveries of 5 antineoplastic drugs are 89.9%-95.7%, with relative standard deviations of 1.6%-6.0%. The method is simple, rapid and sensitive, and can be used for the quality control of green tea and tea products.Q: Counting number of orders for each member of a union? I am working with a schema that has the member "store" being part of a union. How can I get a count of how many stores are in a union for each member of the union? I would prefer to do it in SQL and not have to build a CTE to loop through each of the stores and grab the count. I can easily do this in MySQL, but I have a feeling that this might be a constraint of SQL Server. A: It sounds like what you want is a GROUP BY with a COUNT. SELECT store , COUNT() FROM whatever GROUP BY store The following example from the documentation shows the basics: SELECT branch_no, COUNT() AS employee_count

Rescue Plan for Its Coastal Cities As the historic flooding in the United Kingdom sweeps over England, the cities of the South West are being inundated by an unprecedented deluge of unprecedented proportions. There have been severe floods across the country as the River Thames hits levels that are rare even in its worst years. According to some reports, as much as 100 billion gallons of water has been released into the waterways. As part of Britain's Victorian-era drainage system, rivers that were engineered to disperse the excess rainfall have now been choked, swelling to unprecedented levels. The cities of Bristol and Bath have been flooded, and thousands of homes have been evacuated. Coastal areas of the United Kingdom have been cut off, and millions of pounds have been needed to buy air-dropped food and water. This has all been made even more difficult by a combination of austerity, rising seas, and a warming climate. A government response has been delayed by five days, apparently until June 15, at which time the Prime Minister, Theresa May, will decide whether or not to go on national television to address the nation about the crisis. There is a de facto moratorium on major government action in the affected areas. The Prime Minister has been criticised for refusing to call a state of emergency. According to the Daily Mail, the prime minister has warned that she will not announce a state of emergency unless there is a good reason to do so. There are few good reasons for a state of emergency; these are reserved for wars and catastrophes. However, 2d92ce491b
